MEMORANDUM FOR LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL:

Earl Reynolds, the new administrative assistant to Senator Dworshak of Idaho, telephoned to secure the names of the President's Board of Consultants and their addresses, saying the senator wanted to mail a press release to each member. I gave the names and addresses to Reynolds and told him of [REDACTED] and of his being the Legislative Liaison, and that [REDACTED] would be delighted to be of help.

Reynolds succeeded an old acquaintance of mine, Sandor Klein, for many years with the United Press in New York and Washington, and administrative assistant to Dworshak for the last three years. Klein is now located in New York city.

Reynolds asked if I would pass on to [REDACTED] an invitation to come in and meet him because he, Reynolds, is new in Washington and does not yet know the ropes very well.

I asked him to send me a copy of the press release (I did not ask him what it is about), and he said he would mail one to me. I will pass it on when it comes.
